WHAT SENATOR CONGER SAYS

"THE CRITIC" SUSTAINED. An interview was held in Detroit vester day with United States Senator Conger, of which a clear and intelligible report is printed elsewhere, in regard to the proba ble action of the Senate next winter upon nominations made by President Cleveland during the recess.

Although Mr. Conger does not repeat in terms the language of the resolutions agreed to in the March cancus, and which THE CRITIC was the first newspaper in the country to make public, it will be seen that he expresses substantially the same

The idea is simply this: That of course the Senate will not assume to interfere in any way with appointments to office where the terms of the previous incumbents have expired, or in the case of such offices as from their peculiar importance, and by long usage, are associated with the policy of the Administration and esteemed essential to its maintenance, but that where removals have been made on the ground of offensive partisanship, there is a very strong probability that the Senate will institute rigorous investigation into the attendant circumstances, with a view of ascertaining whether the offensiveness of the Republican official suspended, and of the Democratic official appointed, do not so nearly balance as to justify a refusal of confirmation.

If this doesn't mean exactly what THE Critic said, and for which, in various quarters, it has been charged with attempting a piece of pure sensationalism, then will somebody please to explain what it does mean?

We knew we were right and we were right. Our information as to the action of the caucus came from such a source that it was impossible we could be wrong. We maintained that the resolutions quoted, and we now quote them again, were adopted in effect, and adopted they were. Here they are:

"1. That in case of the removal of any efficient Republican public officer on the al leged ground of 'offensive partisanship' and the nomination of a Democratic 'partisan' is his place-THAT SUCH NOMINATION WILL NOT BE CONFIRMED."

"2. That in case any Democratic 'partisan' causes the removal of an efficient Republican and receives as his reward for causing such removal the nomination as successor to the deeapitated official—THAT SUCH NOMINA-TION WILL NOT BE CONFIRMED."

It appears from what Mr. Conger says that this action has not been departed from, or even modified. What was the opinion of Senators in March, is the opinnow knows what he has to expect, other in this country when the wheels of toil should stop and all the people go out to play, it is on the Fourth of July. It was on this day ninety-one years ago that the grandest chapter in the whole history of civil liberty was written. Magna Charta was great, but the Declaration of Independence so much the greater that all the nations can see the difference.

NO "CRITIC" TO-MORROW.

The United States in ninety years has so enlightened the world with its progress that France sends a mighty monument across the seas, in grateful recognition of what America has done for freedom.

England, after seven hundred and sev-enty years, is still handicapped with the trappings of royalty and wrestling with

The Fourth of July, therefore, possesses more significance than any other anniversary on the calendar. There is no holiday to compare with this. It were almost sacrilege to ignore the associations which it recalls, the lessons it teaches, the blessings it commemorates, the immensity of the future which it opens up to the growth and development of human civilization. Therefore should the wide Union rejoice, and The Critic proposes to rejoice between the 4th of March and the 4th of July is one of peculiar importance, not so much in developing its policy as deter-mining its personnel. During this period the executive household is principally engaged in setting itself in order, prepara tory to the greater responsibilities of the future. It is not until five months later. except some rare emergency should inter vene, that the Administration signifies to Congress its views and recommendations touching the legislation of the Government and defines its position upon leading

With the close of the present week Mr. Cleveland will have been four months in office. It has been a busy and laborious time with him, such as perhaps no President has ever experienced before, and although it may be complained, by men so inpatient of office as to be deaf to reason, that he has moved too slowly in the distribution of patronage, it needs but a cursory glance to show that he has accomplished an enormous amount of work -enough at least to afford the country an intelligent idea of the quality of the men with whom he desires to surround himself, and of the motives by which he is governed in their selection.

The general conclusion will be that in the exercise of one of the most difficult and thankless functions which a Presi dent is called upon to discharge, Mr. Cleveland has exhibited the discretion to be expected of a business man, with due regard to the demands of party obligations, and that so few of his appointments are obnoxious to criticism as to create the most satisfactory impres sion of the personal character of his Ad-clans, are convinced that the President wants to do the right thing in the right way-that he means to administer the Government in the interest of those who support it, and that, so far as lies in his power, the public service in all its departments shall he brought up to the highest standard of honesty and efficiency.

Whether he shall equally popular ize his Administration when, ing disposed of the office-seekers, he is brought face to face with Congress and the great issues which are certain to absorb legislative attention next winter, remains of course to be seen. It is enough for the time being to be assured that he is well equipped with administrative ability and will be sustained by the country as long as he looks faithfully after the country's interests. "A new Government cannot be improvised in a minute," as Sec retary Lamar remarked not long ago, but Mr. Cleveland is certainly entitled to the credit of having made a fair start.

It is premature to cherish the fond deusion that Mr. Blaine and Mr. Conkling have embraced and made friends. The chasm is as far from being bridged as ever, though there are plausible statements affoat to that effect. The New York Times says that "one cannot swallow s story of that kind off-hand, as the circus man swallows a sword," and that if Mr Conkling is looking about for a helpmeet, which he is not in the habit of doing, he would be more likely to select Logan than Blaine. In the meantime the disabled Gallia has not been heard from and the fate of Mr. Conkling is uncertain.

MR. F. P. FERRIS, one of the bestknown, best-liked and most valued members of the staff of the Evening Star, has sustained a sad loss, in the death of his estimable and accomplished wife, Mrs. Ora Ferris, which occurred yesterday morning after a painful illness. She was a St. Louis lady and but 28 years of age. Mr. Ferris has the sympathy of many friends both East and West. The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock to-morrow from her husband's residence at Ingle side, Mount Pleasant.

THE Texas papers appreciate merit when they see it and know how to express their appreciation in Lone Star English. Speaking of the Rev. Sam Jones. the metaphoric evangelist of Georgia, who is now in that region, one of the editors says of him that "in a slugging match with the devil he knocked that Plutonic functionary out of time with a regular John L. Sullivan lick, accompanied with a sort of lay-on-MacDuff invitation to come again.'

THE Baltimore Herald rises to remark with no less terseness than truth that, "if certain newspapers in the country would cease making themselves ridiculous by slopping over in praise of Miss Cleveland we think that they would please that lady If she is as level-headed as we take th Cleveland family to be, she must feel the heartiest contempt for these sycophants and busybodies."

THE Ohio Prohibitionists evidently mean business. They have no faith in the Republican party and no sympathy for the Democratic party. Consequently they have placed a ticket of their own in the field, to the unutterable consternation of the party in which they have no faith.

Many are the ways in which the Fourth may be agreeably spent both in and out of town. Those who prefer to celebrate in the country will find ample opportunity by consulting the announcements of excursions elsewhere in The Critic.

IT begins to look as though the mission at Vienna would stay empty awhile; and no great harm can ensue if it does. The question isn't worth bandying technicalities about.

PRESS POINTS.

The Albany Morning Express, under its new management, denies that it is to be Mr. Blaine's or anybody else's organ.

THE CAPE MAY Daily Star commenced its fourteenth season on Wednesday under the editorial management of T. R. Brooks and A. W. Hand.

THE Charlotte (N. C.) Observer entered upon the thirty-fourth year of its publication July 1, and celebrated the event by making its appearance in a handsome eight-page form.

JOHN A. BELL, managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, has resigned that position to begin the practice of law. He has been connected with that journal as managing editor and as a writer for nearly twenty years.

REV. GEORGE H. SPAULDING, editor of the New Hampshire Journal, a Presbyterian journal of high standing at Manchester, has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church at Syracuse, N. Y.

THE MEXICAN EDITORS, now on an excursion through the Northwest and at Minneapolis to-day, are twenty in number and there are six ladies in the party. The only American among them is J. Mastella Clarke, a native of Arkansas, and proprietor of the Two Republics at the City of

THE Summer Capital, a neatly printed so ciety journal, made its first appearance at Long Branch on Sunday. It is to be published every Sunday during the summer months, and will be devoted mainly to the doings of society along the coast from Elberon to Seabright. The editors are Henry L. Stoddard and J. Townley Crane.

COLONEL PACKARD, editor of the Bad Lands Cowboy, returned this week with cured at Oberlin, O. On their arrival at Medora the cowboys turned out and gave them a hearty but noisy welcome. It was the first experience of Mrs. Packard with Dakota, and she was delighted with the country.—[St. Paul Globe.

have it on the market. The number of letters sent us regarding it is astonishing.

"When will it be out?" was asked of him by a New York Son reporter.

"On Tuesday morning next, and without fail. We have been delayed by the necessity of copyrighting the book in England before we put it in the market here, and again the demand was so great that the first edition was exhausted before it. the first edition was exhausted before it was completed; now the second one is sold, and on Monday, a day before a single copy is issued, the third edition will go to press, and the indications are that it will be gone in a few days."

"Is it true that costly copies are being prepared for the ex-ladies of the White

"Yes, Copies simi, nose which we propose to present to sliss Cleveland are being made for them, and one copy will be forwarded to Queen Victoria. Miss Cleveland has nothing to do with this; it is our work. One copy will also be sent to the President. It is the first time in the history of the country that the 'first lady of the land' has been an author, and we are not unmindful of the fact."
